VOL. IV No.054

April & May 2018

Man should discharge his duties faithfully and pay due respects to God also. It is not possible for every man to act independently with self-confidence to achieve success with strong will- force and sharp intellect. He needs some help to support his weakness. To get this support he usually admits and adores a personal God. Those who cannot advance without the aid of some sort of prop, must take some spiritual food every day. It will be of great help to them.

What is that spiritual food? It is meditation on the spiritual light, recitation of hymns, singing devotional songs, offering sincere prayers, surrendering yourself to the Almighty and so on. These will certainly give you the strength to keep you on the right path. All great achievers had surrendered their body, mind, intellect and wealth to God, before undertaking any important work. They had commenced their work with prayers and were ultimately successful in their mission.

The way to get more light is the faithful use of what we have. Make practical use of the divine light bestowed upon you, and then the path onward will be shown to you. Let your hands be engaged in doing worldly jobs while your heart remains devoted to God.

The wisdom and practices pave a way through the scriptures in Vedas and is relevant in every era. "Loka Samasta Sukhino Bhavanthu". All actions through this mind and body must be only for the betterment of the nature and the society. Only then will the harmony be established.

Nurturing the next generation to inculcate value based education of love, kindness, compassion, respect for elders and empathy towards fellow beings has to be boosted up. Summer vacations of our children needs to be guided along these lines instead of computer activities and mobile gaming. May the Almighty guide us in our future endeavours.
